The dedication of the new Bethany Congregational church, of Emporia, which was to have taken place on ing put into the Presbyterian church by the 13th, but was postponed on account of the rain, came off Sunday, and proved one of the most interesting and auspicious events in the history of the town. The morning was cloudy, but cool and invigorating. The brak breeze and occasional rifts of sunshine dispelled all fears of rain, and in consequence quite a respectable representation was present from Dry and Coal creeks, and the attendance was as good as could have been desired. The dedicatory exercises proper began at half past 10 o'clock a. m., by which time the beautiful auditorium Sixty-four dollars were raised at the and the lecture room were crowded to bering probably 500 people.
